BIOSOPHICAL SELF-EDUCATION

YOUTH - DIARY LEAVES

THE SIGNIFICANCE OF EVIL

MIND POWER
A TRIBUTE TO
FREDERICK KETTNER
Founder of Biosophy

Published on the occasion of Dr. Kettner's fiftieth birthday and arranged by Mrs. Kettner

This volume presents the teachings and ideals of Biosophy (the science of intelligent living). Lovers of truth, of a finer and nobler life will find in this book a path to the realization of the highest ideals.

Excerpts from "Appreciations", a chapter in this volume:

"I believe that your group is the embodiment of that spirit which Spinoza served so passionately."  Albert Einstein

"I know of no more constructive work that is being done in the way of preparing a better future for the world than that which Dr. Kettner is attempting with the groups of young people under his guidance and inspiration."

Claude Bragdon

"We need Dr. Kettner's biosophical genius right now when everything seems to be out of proportion."

The youth is attacked from many sides. It is whispered: "Youth is absorbed by sport"; "It has turned away from humanitarian sciences and is engrossed in materialistic technicalities"; "It neglects the purity of language and spoils the speech with horrible slang"; "It has deserted its family"; "It prefers jazz"; "It avoids lectures"; "It does not love the book and does not like to read". A lot of awful things are said about the youth. Of course, in every single case there has been some reason for such accusations. Even in the daily press one may find facts as if supporting them. Let us even admit that to some extent this is so. But if we look at the causes, we find that before accusing the youth we must first call to answer the elder generation.

Is there much sincerity in the family? Is the home life always attractive? Is it possible to express serious striving under contemporary conditions? Is there much upliftment and high aspiration in the routine house work? Does the elder generation devote itself to humanitarian ideals? Who laid the first path towards materialism? Who filled the home with poisonous tobacco smoke? Was it the youth that introduced alcohol into the home? Has the family time to listen to the quest of the youth? Does the family strive into the future? Where is born indifference to good and evil? Where is the birthplace of slander, bad language and gossip? Where has the youth heard for the first time blasphemous jokes? Where did they hear for the first time of destruction and not of upbuilding and creativeness?

Hence, instead of accusing the youth, let us realize where the hot-beds of this misfortune are hidden.

Let us ask ourselves: "Do we know the really hard-working youth?" Of course, we do.

"Do we know the self-sacrificing youth who gives to the family all his earnings?" — Of course, we do.

"Do we know the youth who is sincerely and ardently dreaming of a beautiful future?" Of course, we do.

"Do we know the youth who craves for serious books and inspiring discussions?" Of course, we do.

"Do we know the youth who knows how to live in harmony and mutual trust?" Of course, we do.

"Do we know the youth who has consecrated himself to the service of the Beautiful?" Of course, we do.

Thus pondering over the best heights of humanity, we shall find on every summit also some of the best young souls. And this radiant ascension of youth takes place not only in one country—they symbolize our present age all over the world.

Greetings to all young co-workers! We rejoice to witness many most enlightened associations of youth, who struggle towards Light in strenuous efforts. How heartily they strive towards the highest aims of mankind. We know what hardships they have to overcome. We know how they have to rise above local and family circumstances and yet they find inexhaustible strength to go by the higher path. And on all their trails they affirm blessed milestones. And all this common good is accomplished amidst indescribable difficulties. And still the attainment takes place and when one wishes to think of something touchingly joyful, one recalls these affirmations of the young generation.

Another instance of harmony amongst youth comes to my mind. I remember how in a huge stern city the young after hard work for their daily bread, gathered in the evening gayfully, dressed in their best, hastening to partake of the living water of philosophy, science and art. They were so accustomed to joint activities that they even tried to live in small communities.

We recall three rooms. In them live seven girls. All of them are hard workers. One is a salesgirl, one is a secretary, one a stenographer and others work in factories. We ask them:

"For how long have you already lived together?"

— "For three years".

"And how often did you quarrel?" — They laugh........

"Never!"

It is not a miracle! People of various professions can live harmoniously together, can after the day's difficult work, despite being tired, gather together and they do not fight, but they revive and enrich each other through exchange of lofty ideals. What inspiring and convincing affirmations one can hear from the youth. Who strives in highest enthusiasm to truth and is indignant at injustice, if not young hearts! For thirty two years at the head of schools I am connected with the youth and no unhappy recollections have marred my contact.
If we shall judge the young without prejudice, we shall find many beautiful signs of self-sacrifice, striving towards knowledge, love and beauty. Those who are in the habit of condemning youth should beware of senile babbling. These desperate condemners see that life to-day is in confusion and ugly misunderstanding. But when they try to find the guilty, they usually, excusing themselves, look for the easiest scapegoat. They see only the results but avoid thinking of the causes. These causes are quite curable if properly treated by the entire society.
If every unprejudiced observer will find so many numerous beautiful and touching examples in favour of the youth then it is already not difficult to arouse public opinion to appreciate precisely these manifestations of good. The young people, even inexperienced, yet courageously and self-sacrificingly oppose the dark forces and, therefore, those who consider themselves wise, should sincerely support every noble effort of the youth. But one can support only through examples in life. No abstract nagging will give a harvest. Only actions and deeds, living examples can convince.
If youth itself realizes the joy of work and inspiring communion, then the more so should the wise elders encourage exactly this joy. One should not coldly condemn that which has given such beautiful evidence. If, because of our times everybody finds it difficult, then one should jointly try to transmute these difficulties into joy. The young hearts understand this. Therefore, let us help in every way that the youth may meet on the path of bliss and inspiration.
One may equalize everything by the lowest, but such equality is tantamount to degeneration. But every equalizing by the highest will be true progress. In many parts of the world there exists a legend that because of one righteous man an entire city was saved. This legend, which is so beautifully and multi-formedly expounded, shows that in everything quality is valuable and not quantity. Consequently every good example outshines the negative suppositions.
The seal of the age is created by all nations and therefore, the easier it is to gather good signs. In various languages, in various customs these hieroglyphs of good are highly inspiring.
A child tries to reach a postbox to push a letter into it. A passerby wants to help him and noticing the envelope, which was obviously made by the child itself, the scribbling: "To Saint Nicholas", asks: "What is this?"—"Mummy is dying and nobody wishes to help her".
In such an amazing way the heart of the child prays to Saint Nicholas and receives a response and help. Thus the young and youthful find the way to the highest.

CONFERENCE FOR THE FURTHERANCE OF PEACE EDUCATION AND THE SECRETARY OF PEACE PLAN

In conjunction with its campaign for the establishment of a Secretary of Peace, the Biosophical Institute is calling a Conference for the Furtherance of Peace Education and the Secretary of Peace Plan. Activities are being completed for the opening of the conference.
Already numerous letters have been received from members of Congress, from prominent leaders and educators affirming the Peace Conference and its purpose. Due to the inability of some of these leaders to attend, messages are being sent by them to be read at the opening of the conference on Friday evening, May 21st at 9 P.M. Encouraging comments are being received from the Hon. Caroline O'Day, Representative from New York State, Secretary of Commerce, Daniel C. Roper, Dr. Philip Seman of Chicago, Dr. Mary E. Woolley, President of Mt. Holyoke College, etc.
The conference will also include delegates from various peace organizations in New York and vicinity who will meet to discuss peace problems, and particularly, steps necessary for the furtherance of the Secretary of Peace idea.
The outstanding necessity in organizations which have as their main objective peace or some other unselfish ideal, is that of cooperation. It is the aim of the Biosophical Institute, in calling this conference, to help promote the spirit of cooperation and mutual good fellowship between itself and other groups of a similar nature, thus welding more firmly the bond of friendship among these groups.
The conference will be opened with addresses by prominent speakers who are also friends of the Biosophical Institute. Mr. George Sidney Hellman, prominent author and poet, Dr. Paul R. Radosavljevich Professor of Experimental Education in New York University, Miss Frances R. Grant Vice-President of the Roerich Museum and Dr. Henry L. Messner, Principal of The Friend's Seminary will be among those to address the conference.
A peace dance in the evening will conclude the activities of the second day. The final day of the conference, May 23rd, will conclude with round table discussion groups, music, and talks on our prospects for the future to be presented in the evening.
