Some time ago you inquired regarding the courses taught in our Institution and we sent you our catalogue with a letter giving you general information about the extensive program of art courses at the Master Institute and the various benefits to which our students are entitled. The season has already started and we notice that you are not yet among those who have enrolled.

No doubt you were interested in some of our courses offered by the Institution as your inquiry indicated. We are therefore writing to ask you if we cannot supplement the information already given you with more specific details; or, if you prefer, we shall be very glad to see you personally and let you visit the classes in which you may be interested in order that you may get a better idea of the scope of the work offered here.

Looking forward to hearing from you at an early date, I remain

Most sincerely yours,

Director
