Presents
two courses of class lectures
by
MANLY P. HALL

310 RIVERSIDE DRIVE
NEW YORK

Six Lectures on

THE OCCULT ANATOMY OF MAN

An understanding of the true relationship of Man, the Principle, to Man the Personality is absolutely necessary to rational living.

SATURDAYS at 8:30 P. M.

- Jan. 10—The Invisible Bodies.
- Jan. 17—The Heart, the Seat of Life.
- Jan. 24—The Brain, the Temple of the Mind.
- Jan. 31—Mystery of the Third Eye.
- Feb. 7—Blood—"a most peculiar essence."
- Feb. 14—Embryology.

To conform with the highest ethical standards of the philosophers and religious teachers of all ages whose doctrines constitute the substance of his message, Mr. Hall does not charge a fixed admission fee for his lectures.

To cover expenses, those desiring to enter the course are asked to make a voluntary contribution on Enrollment.

As the talks will include periods of questions and discussions, the groups must necessarily be limited. Those desiring to attend should communicate immediately with:

"In the minds of many who are eminently capable of judging, the mind of Manly P. Hall is one of the truest running, highest reaching and deepest searching that has appeared,—at least, in modern times."—Arthur Cartland Bailey, M. Sc., Head of Physics Department, Faculty of Arts and Sciences, Chulalongkarana University, Bangkok, Siam.

"Not since H. P. Blavatsky wrote The Secret Doctrine has a mind of such synthetic power coupled with a magnificent measure of clarity been brought to bear upon the esoteric doctrines of the Ancient Wisdom."—The Messenger, (Official Organ of The American Theosophical Society).

"Mr. Hall's great encyclopedia is already in most of the important Masonic libraries of America and the great educational centers of Europe. It will long be a prized reference work, and those Masons whose official duties render it necessary for them to address groups of the Craft will find it an invaluable aid in the preparation of lecture material."—The Masonic Chronicler, Chicago, Ill.

"The task which Mr. Hall has so successfully essayed requires not only courage but also keen discernment and ability."—The Grand Lodge Bulletin, Grand Lodge of Iowa, Cedar Rapids.

"Perhaps his attainments are his most remarkable assets, but I believe otherwise. Manly P. Hall is original. He is distinct. He occupies a class by himself. I do not recall anyone who resembles him in appearance, in personality, or in mental viewpoints. He is positive. He is poised. He is an orator. He spurns manuscript or note. He has a clear, vibrant voice. Fluent of speech, his style is epigrammatic, and is marked by the frequent employment of striking antitheses."—Los Angeles Examiner.
